

Q1) Unseen Comprehension:

This is a poem about animals that live in, by and around you. This is a poem about many animals you see. It repeats the sound of words, too. Poems that repeat the sounds of words are called rhymes.

Can you try to see in your mind the images of the many animals that I talk about when you read the poem? Are they large or small? Do they live inside or outside? These animals live in different places- the garden, a park, the zoo, the beach, the woods, a lake or an ocean.

Animals- A Rhyming Poem

Animals live in many places- in water, grass, and trees.
 Some hop, some jump, some climb, while others run with ease.
 Animals can swim in lakes or fly high in the sky.
 Smaller ones crawl in the rocks for a shady place to lie.
 Whales dive deep to look for food in an ocean or sea.
 And bees buzz among the flowers, gathering nectar happily.
 If I could be an animal- perhaps a deer or bear,
 I would live wild in the woods and run from here to there.

The End

This is a poem about many animals that live in, by and around you. It rhymes or repeats the sounds in the words at the end of the sentences. Can you tell which words rhyme or sound the same? Does bear and there rhyme? How about sky band lie? Have you seen some of the animals that I talk about? Do the images of lions and tigers, worms or grasshoppers, butterflies or bees, snails or frogs, squirrels or deer, ducks or fish come to your mind when you hear the words? The animals are big and small and live in many places with other animals. Do you see that these animals are dependent on their environment (where they live) for food and shelter? The poem talks about bees needing flowers for nectar. Do you know what bees make with nectar? What do the whales want when they dive deep? Is there an animal you are certain likes to climb trees to live in for shelter?

This poem is a rhyming poem about animals. It tells where some animals live and how they move and find food.
